

Cliquez ici pour la version en francais

EVENTS

How to Inspire and Connect Online | Wednesday August 25 @ 11:00 a.m. EST

Learn how to inspire and connect online, with Isaac LeClair. This webinar will explore how CCFI is linking the food system online, and plans for the future.

Register in advance here!

If you missed the previous webinar, Stefanie Colombo surveyed aquaculture in the Canadian food system. You can view the recording any time via the CCFI website.

PUBLIC TRUST RESEARCH

Check out past Insight Reports on topics like Livestock Transportation, Antibiotics and Aquaculture. The research section on our CCFI website is a great resource to stay current on key trends in the food system and gain credible information to share with Canadians.

WHAT MEDIA IS SAYING

Check out today's trending topics, and get up to date with the latest round of thought provoking articles about the Canadian food system:

- Ahead of the upcoming United Nations Food Systems Summit, a lengthy list of so-called “game changing” proposals have been released by organizers, including plans for integrating climate plans and developing a “responsible meat” initiative.

- Check out how you can grow delicious and nutrient dense food in your living room.
- Minister of Agriculture and Agri-Food Marie-Claude Bibeau has announced an investment of over \$2.6 million to Canadian Forage and Grassland Association (CFGA)
- Canadians will continue to cook up a storm post-pandemic

MISCELLANEOUS

The Canadian Centre for Food Integrity is pleased to introduce our new Communications Manager! We are excited to have Séverine join us at the beginning of August.

Séverine has extensive experience in strategic communications, media relations, social media, and website content management. Before joining CCFI, she served as communications team leader for FPInnovations, a non-profit forestry research center. Previously, she held various positions in communications at RONA inc. and at the Quebec Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food.

Séverine holds a bachelor’s degree in communication and writing from Université de Sherbrooke. She resides in Saint-Lazare, Quebec with her husband and daughter.

We are pleased to welcome Saskatchewan Canola Development Commission as the newest CCFI member!

Canadian Centre for Food Integrity
www.foodintegrity.ca | learnmore@foodintegrity.ca

